

KARL MARX

Karl was born in Prussia at the 19th century, he was a German philosopher, economist, sociologist, journalist and revolutionary socialist whose figure came out to lead workers' rights and who created a new economic thought, as a result of the abuses of the Industrial Revolution, known as Marxism

On the one hand, Marx's theories about economics, society and politics, hold that human societies would progress through class struggle between capitalism and the labour.

On the other hand, Marx believed that he could study history and society scientifically and discern several tendencies of history and therefore he came up with the resulting outcome of social conflicts.

Moreover, Marx believed in the common interest of all. Not only is he the father of the socialism, communism, and labour unions, but also one of the most influential men in history.

As an economist, I follow Marx economical thought and theories since I strongly believe that we must know where we come from and what ideas we defend, and of course, we should never forget Marx's ideas which were thought in order to improve the lives of our social class, workers. I am not only thankful to Marx for all his teachings but also because with him our society could live a break from the patriarchal capitalist system and move forwards so as to achieve better conditions and enlarge the goals of a class of workers who, so far, hadn't had the opportunity to revolt or to stand up and defend their rights.

My male idol is Karl Marx because he's a reference in my life, in my thoughts...and what is your opinion?
